 PACKED PROGRAMME

This year's festival showcases nine feature films, including three feature documentaries, reflecting the breadth, ambition, and international reach of Irish filmmaking today. Short-form cinema sits at the heart of the festival, with 30 short films screening across four carefully curated programmes, celebrating narrative, documentary, and hybrid storytelling. The programme also includes a vertical film presentation, responding to the evolving ways audiences experience film today.

 Irish-Language Cinema

The 2026 programme proudly celebrates Irish-language (Gaeilge) cinema, with several

Irish-language films featured across both feature and short selections, reaffirming the festival's commitment to cultural and linguistic diversity.

Women & Diverse Voices

This year's lineup includes 14 women directors, alongside a wide range of voices and perspectives, including LGBTQ+ stories, Irish-language films, documentaries, and work from both emerging and established filmmakers.

FEATURE HIGHLIGHTS & VISITING FILMMAKERS

The festival opens on Friday, March 20th with the award-winning Horseshoe, followed by a Q&A with actor Neill Fleming. Later that evening, audiences will hear from director Donncha Gilmore following his award-winning debut feature Girls & Boys.

On Saturday, March 21st, director Ronan McCloskey joins us for a discussion after Éire agus na Chéad Náisiúin (Ireland and the First Nations). The day also features Craig Stuart Garfinkle, attending as director of The Unsinkable Entrepreneur and composer on the Irish-language feature Báite.

On Sunday, March 22nd, a special screening of I Hope We Can Still Be Friends is followed by a Q&A with director Aisha Tyler, actor Caroline Morahan, and producer Jordan Lee McGrath. The festival closes with Christy, featuring a discussion led by writer Alan O'Gorman.

The festival also proudly presents the award-winning documentary Listen to the Land Speak, featuring the late Manchán Magan, alongside The Reckoning of Erin Morrigan and the vertical short Pizza Guys vs Vampires, with writer Mat Raney in attendance.

SHORT FILMS PROGRAMMES

Across four curated shorts programmes, IrishFFLA26 celebrates over 30 short films with attending filmmakers and creatives throughout the weekend.
